

GULF COAST Business Review

September 16 – September 22, 2011

CORPORATE REPORT by Sean Roth | Real Estate Editor

Fowler White Boggs office merges with Atkinson, Diner

Tampa-based law firm Fowler White Boggs is merging its Fort Lauderdale office with the Fort Lauderdale-based firm of Atkinson Diner Stone Mankuta, & Ploucha PA. The merger was described as a continuation of the Fowler office's dramatic expansion. The addition of the Atkinson Diner personnel will increase the almost 2-year-old Fowler office to nearly 30 attorneys.

Adele Stone

"This combination really gives us the people, connections and capabilities we need to fully serve the top tier of the South Florida market, and we expect to continue growing together," Terrence Russell, managing shareholder of Fowler's Fort Lauderdale Office, says in a press release. "Our firms have known and respected one another for years, and we could not be happier to call each other partners. This is a great fit."

Fowler White Boggs has more than 130 attorneys in five offices located in Tampa, Fort Lauderdale, Fort Myers, Jacksonville and Tallahassee.